Paradigm welcomes John Benjamins eBooks to its partner program

Esteemed linguistics publisher's eBooks will be sold by Paradigm alongside De Gruyter Mouton and Multilingual Matters

Boston/Warsaw/London - 17/03/2025 - Paradigm Publishing Services, a division of De Gruyter Brill, welcomes John Benjamins to its consortium of university and smaller specialized presses that form the partner program. Under this agreement, John Benjamins's titles will be sold in the University Press Library collection alongside well-known brands like Mouton De Gruyter and Multilingual Matters, ensuring premier offerings in linguistics from Paradigm to academic libraries everywhere in the world.

"Our commitment to diversity in academic content is reinforced by partnerships like the one with John Benjamins, which bring a wealth of specialized knowledge and linguistic expertise to our platform," said Steve Fallon, Managing Director of Paradigm.

John Benjamins, a family-owned business founded in the 1970s in the Netherlands, is firmly rooted in every imaginable subfield of Linguistics and Language Studies. In the past decades, the publisher has built a significant list of titles as well as electronic reference works. Currently, the house produces 80-100 new titles a year. In addition to distributing their frontlist titles, Paradigm will also distribute John Benjamins' backlist of well-over 4,200 titles.

"As an independent academic publisher, we are excited to join other mission-driven presses as part of Paradigm's Partner platform," said Seline Benjamins, Managing Director, John Benjamins. "Our distribution agreement with Paradigm helps to expand our global reach and the discoverability of our eBook titles. It fits perfectly in our strategy to make sure a wide range of options is available for our customers to acquire our publications."
