

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Paradigm welcomes University of South Carolina Press

[Boston/London/Warsaw - 12/03/2025] - Paradigm Publishing Services, a division of De Gruyter Brill, is pleased to announce a new partnership with the University of South Carolina Press. As one of the oldest and most distinguished publishing houses in the American South, they join Paradigm's growing University Press Library group \(UPL\), which enhances the predictability and sustainability of eBook collection acquisitions and has become a comprehensive and unrestricted collection acquisition model for academic libraries.

University of South Carolina Press publishes a range of non-fiction and creative non-fiction for students, researchers, and the public -- including cookbooks and photography books -- but its strength lies in academic subjects like Southern history, African American studies, civil rights, literary studies, and rhetoric and communication. The addition of these subject areas to Paradigm's University Press Library group (UPL) significantly expands its offerings.

We are thrilled to welcome the University of South Carolina Press to our University Press Library group," said Steve Fallon, Managing Director of Paradigm Publishing Services. "This partnership not only enhances our academic offerings, especially in crucial areas like southern history and civil rights, it also represents a strategic step forward with one of the south's most distinguished publishers. By integrating the University of South Carolina Press's rich contributions, we broaden our scope and strengthen our commitment to valuable research."

"The core of the mission of University of South Carolina Press is sharing reliable knowledge with the broadest possible audience so as to initiate important conversations and positively impact communities," stated Michael J. McGandy, Director of USC Press. "Our mission works perfectly in tandem with Paradigm's aim to support scholars who promote, disseminate, and protect the results of their valuable research."

University of South Carolina Press was established in 1944 and currently has more than 1,200 titles available in print and digital formats. By publishing works that educate readers, expand scholarship, and encourage community conversations, the Press furthers the mission of the University of South Carolina to "educate students through outstanding teaching and to provide research, scholarship, and service that drives community and economic impact for the benefit of the state, nation, and world."

To learn more about Paradigm – including the company’s services, history, and mission, vision, and values – visit <https://paradigmpublishingservices.com/>

Contact:

Heather Goss

Senior Communications Manager

heather.goss@degruyter.com

+1 (617) 990-9627

<https://paradigmpublishingservices.com/>